PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

We currently have a couple of new committees added to our Standing Committees List. The first one is the National Show Guidelines/Show Site Committee. They are hard at work preparing documentation of what is required for putting on a National Specialty that will hopefully make things clearer to the ATFTC membership as to what is required for such an endeavor. While everyone, the BOD included, would like to see the Nationals held in different geographical locations from year to year, we must FIRST set up guidelines and have people in these different areas willing and able to make the necessary arrangements, provide support, etc. At this time, our only commitment to Black Mountain Kennel Club, in Las Vegas, NV, is for 2013. You will be seeing more information and articles in upcoming E-News and Fox Tales from this committee chair, Denise Monette, as to their progress as well as giving the ATFTC Membership a sense of what other fun things are available at the National Specialties each year.

The second new committee is the Sunshine Committee. This committee Chair will be in charge of sending cards to any ATFTC Members in the event of illnesses, death in the family, etc. The Committee will be funded by the ATFTC (cards, postage, etc.) Violet Denney has offered to handle these duties until we have a volunteer to take over. If this is something you feel willing and able to do, please contact Vickie Kerley directly. As well, any ATFTC member needs to please feel free to contact either Violet (as interim Chair) or the future Committee Chair with information as to any members who could benefit from this service. If possible, with your notification to the Chair, providing physical addresses (if other than their home address) would be much appreciated.

As we start this new year, I would also like to ask the entire ATFTC Membership to feel free to provide input as to what they would like to see our club's direction and/or goals be for 2013. Any and all ideas are most welcome and will be seriously considered. You may direct this input to either Vickie Kerley (as Secretary) or any of the other BOD members you feel comfortable communicating with.

I hope everyone has had a very happy and safe holiday season and look forward to our working together in 2013!

Cindy

VICE PRESIDENT'S REPORT January 3, 2013

Barbara (BJ) Andrews

Your Board is planning an exciting New Year. My personal agenda is to encourage more involvement of members who don't breed or show but who have special skills, talent, and professional expertise to offer the club. If you are crafty; can make things, paint or draw, please contact our Awards Committee Chair Carolyn Lichty or Diane Clark who is working on 2013 trophies. Please, volunteer your services and ideas!

The Performance Committee, chaired by Mona Lily, is hoping to generate extra income for the club and great exposure for the breed by sharing an All Breeds agility event in May. TFTs are among the best choices for Agility as they are so athletic, and of course, intelligent. Five TFTs qualified for the Eukanuba Championship Invitational Agility Trial! If you haven't explored Obedience yet, check out the new fun (and easy!) titling classes AKC is approving for later this year.

The Judges Education Committee divided like an amoeba, splitting into Judges and Public Education. The JEC consisting of Kelley Maldon, John Davidson, and Olin Nichols did a marvelous job gaining Board and membership approval in 2008 but the Illustrated Breed Standard (IBS) and the Breed Information Pamphlet (BIP) have been languishing in limbo-land. I hope to report next month that the BIP will have been printed and put into use and that the IBS will be in active use for club-hosted Judges Ed seminars and club-approved presenters for the Judges' Groups.

The Breeder Referral committee, Lila Fast and Violet Denney, is working on new guidelines and will be able to use the above pamphlet materials to send to people looking for a Toy Fox Terrier.

The Membership Committee chaired by Kasey Mando reports that we have only 90 paid members as of December. My suggestion is to contact Secretary Vickie Kerley and ask her to send you some (corrected) blank membership forms for your friends and puppy owners. Membership dues support the work of the club. I think our new Webmaster, Barb Kelly will be able to put a downloadable membership application form on the website that will include where to send the application. That crucial part was missing on the old form which could explain why it was so hard for members to join!

The breed information pamphlet can also be put online to save printing costs but Denise Monette has obtained a great price for glossy color printing. The pamphlet can then be sent to judges and to anyone requesting information. Breeders should request a supply of membership applications and breed pamphlets to provide to prospective owners.

Speaking of the club website, if you haven't been to there lately, by the time you receive this, it will have been overhauled and improved by Barb Kelly. The dropdown list and other malfunctioning functions will be corrected so that people can contact breeders close to them.

New Board, New Year, New Progress!

American Toy Fox Terrier Club Parent Club Specialty

By Richard G. (Rick) Beauchamp

It was a pleasure of the highest order to be invited to judge the First Parent Club Specialty of the Toy Fox Terrier Club of America that was held in Las Vegas, Nevada on October 12, 2012. The club's request to submit a critique of the assignment was not accompanied by a deadline and therefore like so many of us who write professionally, requests with a date tag are dealt with first--seldom before and hopefully not too much later than the assigned date. Those noted "soon" do get attention "just as soon as we get a minute"--thus the tardiness of this article.

Those who know me are aware that my association with the TFT goes back many years--back before AKC recognition, back to the days of Miscellaneous, and before that to the days when the breed was supported by sizable entries in the United Kennel Club. It was my pleasure to know and learn from many of the breed's earliest breeders and fanciers including a true TFT doyen, Eliza L. Hopkins, author of the iconic breed book, "The Toy Fox Terrier." Mrs. Hopkins, I am happy to report is still very much alive and thriving in her Northern Michigan home.

The Entry

The entry just short of 60 (25 Specials) with few absentees represented a good cross section of the breed and the bloodlines that exist around the country. Having judged a good many specialties of a wide variety of breeds I can say with confidence that the overall quality of the TFT can stand proudly along side breeds that have been recognized by the AKC for decades.

My four eventual top award winners pleased me greatly in their overall silhouettes, correct bone for size, attitudes and beautiful expressions. They maintained that delicate balance that breeders strive to achieve based on the breed's terrier and toy heritage. GCh. Barbary's That's So Raven, The Best of Breed bitch, a seasoned campaigner, epitomizes this balance. She is very much middle of the road in size, substance, and balance, excelling in soundness and head properties. Best Opposite to her was GCH Ultra Quest Go For The Gold, a young male whose elegance is hard to match. Very correct angulation front and rear with rock hard topline. His youth shows but as I have always maintained, there is absolutely no fault in being young. I look to this youngster to make his mark in the not too distant future both as a sire and a show dog.

Browsing my catalogue after the show I was fascinated to find that Best of Breed, Winners Dog (Barbary Go, Diego, Go), Reserve Winners Dog (Barbary's Number Eleven), Winners Bitch (Barbary Joan Jett), Select Dog and Best Stud Dog (Ch. Barbary Rough 'N Ready) were all the result of the same Barbary bloodline. In addition the Best Opposite Sex dog, Reserve Winners Bitch, and several individuals taking placements and wins through the classes shared Ultra Quest Kennels as their source.

Consistency of kennel names is noteworthy and commendable. Far more important to me as a former breeder however is the fact that the dogs and bitches emanating from these kennels are of a style that both express the respective breeder's vision of the breed while fully conforming to the breed standard. In this day of numbers and mega-winners we have many kennels producing dogs that can be found at the top of the numbers charts but upon closer examination bear scant resemblance one winner to the next. They come from breeding programs based on "breed what you have, keep what you get, and campaign the living blazes out of what you show until it achieves one standing or another."

The TFT breed standard lists a large number of disqualifications (9) but I am happy to report that none caused me to eliminate any dog from competition. Serious faults were in the minority but as a word of caution, breeders should exercise diligence in the area of slipping patellas (malformed knee caps). All breeds, particularly the Toy breeds, are susceptible to the problem. While the incidence in the Vegas entry was minimal it is always wise to be vigilant in this respect. Strong well-made and muscular upper thighs with sufficient angulation help to safeguard against this problem.

Isolated problems appeared here and there but other than the two I will address the breed can take great pride in being among the healthiest I have judged in the past several years. The two problems of conformation that the breed must seriously deal with are movement and topline.

Movement

Movement in the breed runs the gamut: restricted fronts and rears (little reach in front and rear movement totally under the dog with little if any follow through and drive), crossing over in front, out at the elbows. The only fault of movement the standard calls attention to is “hackney gait” which interestingly I found literally non-existent in the Vegas entry nor have I found it a matter of concern in entries that I’ve passed on country wide.

What I have found to be a genuine movement problem in the breed is “goose stepping.” There is a marked difference between “hackney” and “goose stepping.” However, neither of them is correct for the TFT whose standard calls for movement that is “smooth flowing with good reach and strong drive.” Hackney movement, typically found and correct for the Miniature Pinscher, is that in which the foreleg from elbow to pastern is lifted parallel to the ground. The remainder of the foreleg (pastern to toe) bends downward perpendicular to the ground. Reach is minimal.

Goose stepping on the other hand is movement similar to what is seen in the Italian Greyhound. (It should be noted however, that IG breeders do strive for as much forward movement as can be obtained with this movement.) It is similar in some respects to hackney but is first of all less exaggerated in that the foreleg does not rise completely parallel to ground. Elbow to toe is almost fully extended but instead of reaching forward from the shoulder the foreleg is lifted rapidly up and then quickly returned to the ground with little or no flexing of the leg joints. The movement is primarily up and down with little forward reach. The front problem that runs rampant through the TFT breed is what is considered goose stepping. It should be obvious that following the standard, a judge, looking for the nearly nonexistent hackney, is likely to overlook goose stepping which is not mentioned in the standard yet is totally contradictory to what the TFT standard asks for concerning movement

Topline

A problem that I noted far less in the Vegas entry than I have in most other large entries I’ve observed over recent years is in topline which is required to be straight, flowing smoothly with a gentle arch from behind the skull down over well laid back shoulders to the dead straight topline withers to set on of tail. Too often we see an abrupt juncture of neck and shoulder with a drop off directly behind the withers and then commencing on to the topline. Although it can be disguised somewhat in setting up the dog, it becomes glaringly obvious when the dog moves. The problem here is in shoulders lacking proper layback. Shoulders should be long, sloping and well laid back. I quote directly from Ms Hopkins “The Toy Fox Terrier” in which she states, “There should never be an abrupt break where the neck and the shoulders join. Similarly, a dip in the back, behind the shoulders (sic) blades, usually indicates insufficient layback.”

In Summary

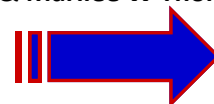

No dog, no breed for that matter exists that is entirely free of faults or flaws. Some problems are transmitted from the earliest beginnings of the breed. Outcrosses to other breeds help breed founders move forward to their goal but along with these fortunate crosses come problems that stubbornly refuse to be eradicated. It is up to future generations of fanciers to keep on their toes and work to make sure that they preserve the good and do their best to eliminate as much as possible what is undesirable.

CONGRATULATIONS
 ONE & ALL

A FUNNY THING HAPPENED.....

Have you ever placed a puppy in a wonderful home and then received an email from the puppy to come pick me up...I have. This is the email string.

Email from Annie (Wilson X Dolly) right before Christmas holidays:

“Help! Mom went out for about 40 minutes and left me home alone. I was in my crate with soft towels and blankets and my kong toy (suffed w/peanut butter) and I pooped. Well, I ate some and played with the rest – getting it outside my crate somehow. I managed to even get it on my kong toy pacifier...oh, plus some on the white wall. My nice soft blankies and my pretty feet were all messy from it too. It made mom feel like turning around and leaving. But she didn’t. She did worse!

Submitted by Dorothy Fisher, Laliqie Toy Fox Terriers.

She picked me up and headed to the laundry room wash tub! Gramma! It was awful. Water, then shampoo, and then more water. Mom kept talking to me like I was a little baby. THEN!!! To add insult to injury...she cut my nails. All of um! She thought cradling me in a big fluffy towel would make me okay with all that. Uh huh. Will you come and pick me up? I’m just so scared that she might think she can do this again...I lived through it this time (am on dad’s lap with a chewy trying to recoup) but who knows about next time ?!?!

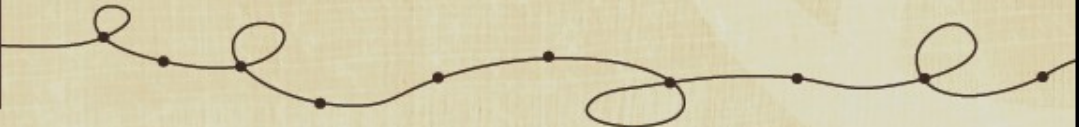

X00X0000

I love you Gramma”

Answer from Gramma:

“Oh my goodness, sure glad I placed you in a good understanding home. You will just have to tough it out, no backies. I love you too!!!

Love, Gramma”

If you are interested in sponsoring a specific level of award please contact our Trophy Chairperson, Dianne Clark. The sponsorship will be considered open until the funds are confirmed as received by our Treasurer, Kathy Gilliam. In order to be listed as a donor for the current National, all funds must be received by the Treasurer no later than June 1, 2013.

We would also like to invite any member with a creative talent to contact the Trophy Chair to help us develop other creative and innovative awards for other classes.
