CH Barbary I Go Houdini

"HOUDI"

BRED AND SHOWN BY DENISE MONETTE

BARBARY TOY FOX TERRIERS

CH Barbary I Go Houdini

“HOUDI"

GCH Centennial Farms Ransom X GCHB Barbary Make It Magic

Houdi finished his Championship with Breed wins and Group placements from the classes.

He won a Best Bred-By In Show and a NOHS Group 1 along the way.

He will be shown to his Grand Championship title later this summer.

We are excited about his offspring and are looking forward to them hitting the show ring later this year.

President's Notes – June 2026

Summer is here and preparations are in high gear for our National and Regional Specialties! Our National is August 21 and the Regional is August 20th in Topeka, Kansas. We will have a regional and supported entries that weekend as well. Tabs Dvorak is the Show Chair and Onofrio is the superintendent. Tabs and Laura Johnson are working the awards for the show. Rebekah Rivera is working the show sponsorships and tracking things and running a Facebook page for the National. If you haven't set to follow the page, it's a good place to keep up with the news as we get closer. Please consider sponsoring a class or award and thank you to those who have already done so. We've also planned a stud showcase that weekend and Pam Cox and I are coordinating that. Bring your boys for the folks who are planning upcoming breedings to see and go over and discuss.

Please see the attached information for our annual banquet. Looking forward to good food and a good time with our members to celebrate the many achievements.

And if you want to donate a raffle basket – that would be awesome! The schedule of events is attached to these notes.

Regional ATFTC shows coming up are:

- Sept 2026 – Designated Specialty at Somerset Hills, NJ
- December 2026 – Orlando Regional Specialty
- April 2027 – ATFTC National Specialty and Regional Specialty Perry, GA

We've had some sad news recently. ATFTC members Cheryl Bohannen and Sheryl Irwin both recently passed. We will cherish their memories and honor their contributions to our breed and the ATFTC.

Recently, there have been rumors we've established a committee to update the standard. That is false. The Board initiated a Constitution and By Laws committee. There are some small corrections that need to be made, we need to update/broaden what events we support (currently obedience and tracking are the only performance sports listed) and we strongly feel we should add a membership category for our members who are aging out of the sport but who we'd like to see stay a part of our club. Laura Johnson has volunteered to lead the committee, and information will be coming out later this summer with the changes the committee proposes for your review.

Chris Bowker is preparing the next edition of Fox Tales. Please consider putting in an ad. And don't forget if you got a versatility award to send a photo of your pup to Chris – those brags are welcomed and free! Send ads and newsletter materials to bowmanor@bellsouth.net And a reminder, redacted copies of the newsletter are at the club website so not just members will see your ads!

Once again, we'd like to ask where you'd like upcoming Nationals to be held. Clusters are preferred, easily accessible from an airport for those flying in, decent restaurants in the area, and since most of our dogs dislike showing in the rain and our exhibitors hate to be hot and sweaty, the preferred venues are indoors. Please send your suggestions to the board email address, atftc_board@atftc.com

We appreciate all you do to promote and support our wonderful breed. If you have any ideas of things you'd like the club to consider adding to our agenda or being involved in just reach out to any officer or board member. Please consider being involved in one or more of our events or committees. As they say, it takes a village for us to do all we do and you are our village. Again, thank you to everyone for all you do for our breed. You rock!

See you at the shows!

WHAT IS KENNEL BLINDNESS?

The greatest threat to a breeding program is often the one we cannot see.

Every breeder faces important decisions. Whether selecting a sire or dam, deciding which puppy to retain, or introducing a new dog into a breeding program, every choice influences the future of the kennel and, ultimately, the future of the breed itself.

One of the greatest obstacles to sound breeding decisions is kennel blindness—the gradual loss of the ability to evaluate our own dogs objectively.

It is not necessarily caused by a lack of intelligence or poor intentions. Kennel blindness develops through familiarity, pride, emotional attachment, and the natural desire to believe our own dogs are better than they truly are. Left unchecked, it can quietly erode a breeding program over generations.

> "The breeder, to be successful, must look at his dogs—not only in the face, but in the body, front and running gear. Even to themselves many breeders will not acknowledge their failure when they fall short of their objective…and in an effort to convince others of the perfection of their dogs, they usually convince only themselves."
> — Attributed to K. Onsott

Those words were written decades ago, yet their warning remains relevant: affection must never replace evaluation.

The Breed Standard Is Our Measuring Stick

Every breed has a written standard describing the ideal specimen. It is not a promise of perfection, but a guide intended to preserve the structure, movement, temperament, type, and purpose of the breed.

No dog is perfect. Every breeding decision involves compromise. The practical lesson often associated with Lloyd Brackett's breeding philosophy is to set clear priorities rather than attempting to correct every weakness in a single generation. Successful breeders recognize faults, understand which improvements matter most, and choose mates whose strengths complement—not duplicate—the weaknesses before them.

> "Improvement begins with honest evaluation."

Recognizing Kennel Blindness

Denial

Perhaps the most common symptom is refusing to acknowledge faults. When a dog consistently performs poorly in competition, it is easy to blame politics, poor judging, favoritism, or inexperienced judges. Although such situations may occur, a consistent pattern of results should prompt a breeder to look again at the dog.

> "What am I missing?"

Seeking the opinions of respected breeders, judges, and mentors requires humility—but humility is one of the greatest assets a preservation breeder can possess.

Jealousy

Kennel blindness can prevent breeders from recognizing excellence in someone else's kennel. If every winning dog is dismissed as overrated while every fault in one's own dogs is excused, objectivity has been lost. The greatest breeders study outstanding dogs regardless of ownership. Good dogs should inspire us, not threaten us.

Believing Your Dogs Are Perfect

No breeding program has produced perfection. Every outstanding dog possesses virtues and shortcomings. Great breeders spend as much time discussing what they hope to improve as celebrating what they have accomplished.

Social media has made kennel blindness easier to disguise. Professional photography, dramatic editing, ribbons, rankings, advertising, and enthusiastic reactions create the illusion of greatness. None of those things improves structure, movement, health, or temperament. The breed standard—not social media—remains the measuring stick.

Who Is Most Vulnerable?

Small or Isolated Kennels

Limited breeding stock can also limit perspective. Without experienced mentors or trusted breeders willing to offer honest criticism, faults may become normalized simply because there are too few opportunities for comparison.

Ego

Pride is often the greatest enemy of improvement. Some breeders become so publicly invested in a particular dog that admitting its faults feels like admitting failure. The opposite is true. Breeders who change course or retire dogs when necessary demonstrate that preserving the breed matters more than protecting a reputation.

Lack of Knowledge

Education helps prevent kennel blindness. Study pedigrees. Attend specialties. Watch dogs move. Read historical breed literature. Learn from breeders whose accomplishments have stood the test of time. The more dogs a breeder evaluates, the easier it becomes to recognize quality—and recurring faults.

Financial Pressure

Financial pressure can distort breeding decisions. The temptation to breed an unsuitable dog because replacing it is expensive may solve today's problem while creating tomorrow's genetic one. Preservation breeding has never been the quickest path to profit.

Hallmarks of Objective Breeders

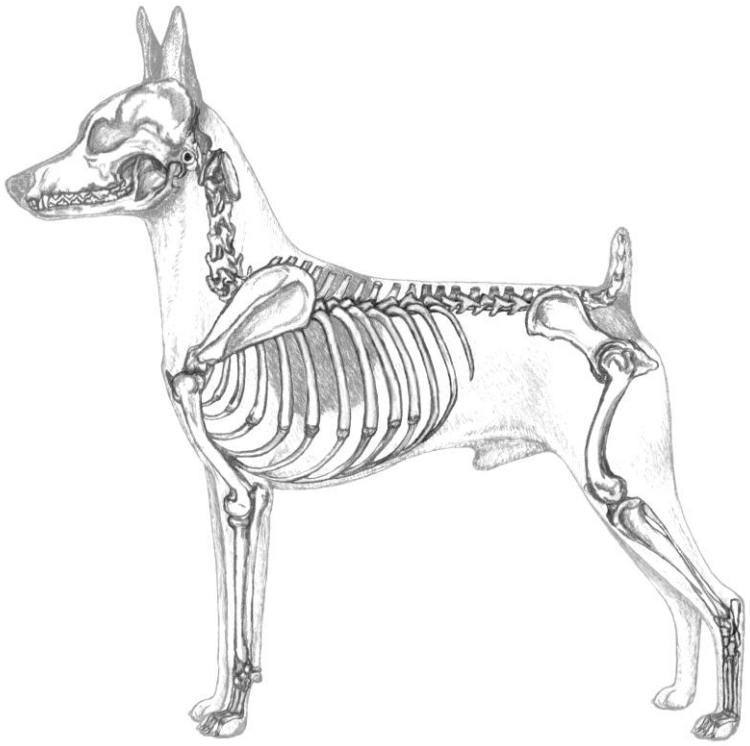

Breeders who consistently improve their lines tend to share several traits: they are often their own harshest critics; they admire outstanding dogs regardless of ownership; they continue searching for better breeding stock; and they willingly remove dogs from a program when those dogs fail to meet its goals. Most importantly, they remain students of their breed throughout their lives.

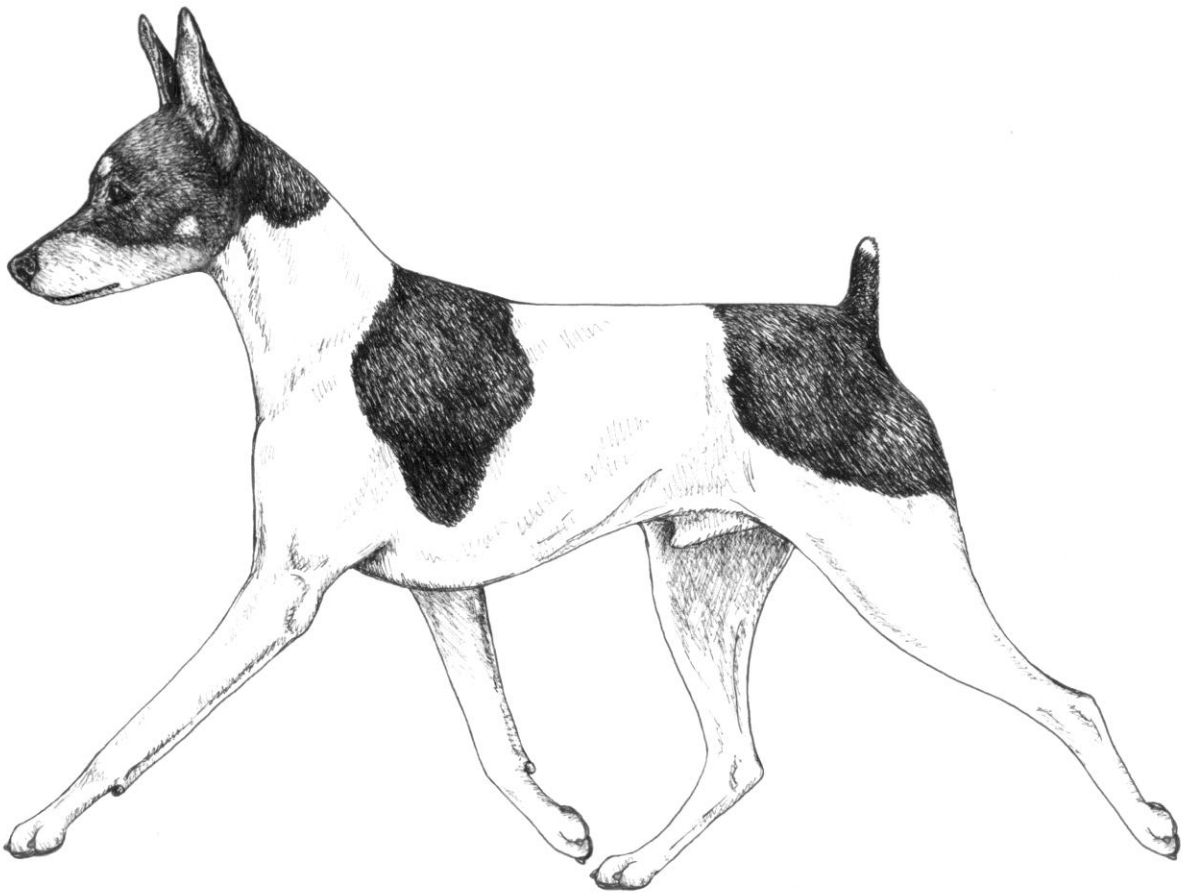

Richard G. Beauchamp's writing repeatedly distinguished the qualities of a winning show dog from those of a valuable breeding dog. A championship may establish that a dog can win; only its offspring can demonstrate its value as a producer. Learning to see that distinction is part of learning to see dogs honestly.

Seeing the Whole Dog

Perhaps the most dangerous form of kennel blindness is fixation on a single characteristic. A breeder striving for heavier bone may unknowingly sacrifice shoulder assembly. A breeder selecting only for head type may lose movement. One pursuing coat may overlook temperament.

Every virtue gained at the expense of balance can eventually become a fault. The complete dog must be evaluated: balance, proportion, movement, temperament, health, breed type, and function all matter. As Rachel Page Elliott demonstrated through her work on canine structure and movement, anatomical features do not operate in isolation. Dogs are not collections of individual parts; they are complete, functional animals.

The Cure for Kennel Blindness

Kennel blindness begins the moment we believe we have nothing left to learn. Its cure is humility.

- Ask respected breeders to evaluate your dogs honestly.
- Compare breeding stock with the written standard—not with personal expectations.
- Study great dogs from the past as carefully as those winning today.
- Accept thoughtful criticism with gratitude rather than defensiveness.
- Keep health, temperament, function, and breed type ahead of pride, publicity, or profit.

Most importantly, remember that we are not breeding dogs simply for ourselves. We are temporary custodians of breeds developed over generations by those who came before us.

> "Our responsibility is not to prove that our dogs are perfect.
> Our responsibility is to leave the breed better than we found it."

That is the opposite of kennel blindness.
That is responsible breeding.
